Risk	Risk Mitigation
COVID-19 spreads easily and is believed to be spread primarily through airborne droplets from an infected person's speech, coughs, and sneezes. When enough droplets from the air enter the mouth or nose of another person, that person can become infected. People without known symptoms can spread the virus to others.	Recommending visits occur outdoors allows droplets to be dispersed and decreases the droplets that accumulate in the air for other people to inhale. If outdoor visitation is not feasible, using designated locations which allow for social distancing reduces the risk of droplets passing from one person to another. Recommending the wearing of face coverings for all residents and visitors and requiring the wearing of face coverings for staff decreases the number of droplets expelled by speech and potentially inhaled by another person. Limiting close personal physical contact decreases the risk of droplet or contact transmission.
Droplets that land on surfaces and are transmitted to a person's mouth nose or eyes may spread the infection.	Teaching/assisting people to wash their hands before visits and to keep their hands away from their faces until hands are washed again after the visit. Cleaning and sanitizing touchable surfaces before and after visits. Using hand sanitizer before touching any surfaces after the visit.

People with some underlying health conditions have a higher risk of an adverse outcome from a COVID-19 infection? These include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> . diabetes . severely obesity . older than 65 years old . known respiratory issues . known cardiac disease, including hypertension . immunocompromising conditions (ex: HIV, cancer, post-transplant, Prednisone treatment, etc.) . renal disease . other underlying health problems 	Health screening of visitors before the visit. Recommending maintaining a social distance of at least 6 feet during the visit. Recommending the use of face coverings during the entire visit. Recommending the avoidance of personal contact during a visit. Thoroughly washing hands after a visit. Cleaning gifts before they go to a person's living area.
